A SMALL HORROR.
Fourteen Furnace Men Victims of an Explosion.
A Flood of Molten Metal Destroyed Six Lives.

Sick—Not Lazy
that's probably what ails you if you're drowsy in the day time. If you yawn, stretch, and feel too weak to work, and broken up generally, some people may call it "Spring Fever," but you are sick.

But do not be discouraged. Men persons have felt just like this you do, and have been made well and strong by and what this famous old strengthening medicine has done for others it can do for you. But what is it that makes Brown's Iron Bitters so good for the health? Any physician can tell you. John Wartha, will die; John Skond, will die; Michael Jarosky, slightly injured; John Harrison, will probably die; Michael Korycos, will die.

A large barrow load with raw iron ore had fallen through the huge bolt on the top of the furnace stack. Fourteen men were engaged in an effort to remove the barrow from the belt, and it would be closed. While thus engaged, the explosion occurred, and not one of the men escaped either death or injury. Work in every department of the huge plant was temporarily abandoned, and all efforts extended to the rescue of the horribly mangled victims, who had been hurled in all directions by the terrific upheaval, which resembled a volcanic eruption of gigantic proportions.

MORE BODIES

Taken From the Ruins of the Gunny Hotel, Deaver—The Hay Still Missing.

DEWEY, Aug. 21.—The awful horror of Monday's catastrophe increases as the time goes on. At 10 o'clock Tuesday the body of M. E. Hawley was taken from the still burning ruins. He was a sleek, slight, thin, well-dressed man, and do, led by the weight of tons of ruins. Four hours after the body of James Murphy was recovered. But a short distance from that spot where Hawley met his awful end the corpse of Gen. Charles Adams is known to lie, and to its rescue the workers are now directed by their energies. About twenty feet from Gen. Adams there are known to be four bodies. They are those of Lizzie Leary, Louise Reinher, Emma Mithelsther and A. S. Blake. The work of rescue will next be directed toward them.

At 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning the body of E. Edwards, the missing butcher, was found. The identification was made certainly by means of a pair of cuff buttons worn by the deceased. The corpse was badly disfigured. One limb had been burned off below the knees. Immediately after the find, another body was partially uncovered, supposed to be that of Gen. Charles Adams.

Elmer Loescher, the Gunny engineer, is still supposed to be alive, and the police and detectives have started out to find him. There is no doubt that he was directly responsible for the explosion, in having turned cold water into the heated boiler. The boy is known as Milton Korycos, by his names, and is said to be a reckless and indolent fellow. The funerals of Geo. Hart and James Murphy took place Tuesday. Burial's remains were sent to Chicago and Murphy's to Cincinnati.
